

Book Review by Iggy Ninkovic

This was a fantastic book! It is about a school in New York. It was election time at the school for sixth grade (Year Six UK). The main characters are the Tapper twins. A boy called Reese and a girl called Claudia. Reese loves nothing better than playing soccer (football) or video games. Claudia is really into politics and is very smart when it comes to things like elections. She wanted to be elected for class president because it was her ambition. Her brother wanted to be elected because he wanted to get soccer back on the roof (the playground is on the roof of the school) after an incident with football falling off the roof on to a person on the street.

How is Claudia going to beat her brother who has teamed up with the cleverest girl in class? Her brother has an equally tricky situation to handle. If he isn't doing the work, then how will he win? Does he care more about soccer than the election?

I wrote about this book because it is almost the American election and it represents a boy and a girl fighting to be president. Just like in the current election. I also think it is written very well and is very funny.
