WRITING – Non-Fiction - Lesson 2 of 5 (Tuesday)

This week we are going to be looking at non-fiction writing. We have completed this before with fact files about the Stone Age, The River Thames and last year in Elephants with our 'Miptor' writing.

Weekly Overview:

Lesson 1 - Finding out about non-fiction features

Lesson 2 - Spotting non-fiction features

Lesson 3 - All about me - Planning non-fiction report about yourself

Lesson 4 - All about me - Writing your non-fiction report about yourself

Lesson 5 - Editing & Finishing off Geography 'The River Nile' fact file

Lesson 2 - LO: To identify features of a non-fiction report.

1) Read my biography again (see below)

2) Draw this table in your book:

Feature	Letter
heading	A bullet points introduction caption glossary images/pictures fact boxes sub-heading

3) Identify the different features of this report by matching the letters with the feature in the table. The first one has been done for you.

4) Can you spot these features in any non-fiction books you have at home? Tip: You could do this with a friend via Video Call with your parent's permission

ALL ABOUT ROXANNE

B

Roxanne is currently a teacher at Kew Riverside Primary School (KRPS) and this guide will tell you more information about her life and also provide a glimpse into her past.

C Early Life

Roxanne was born in Edinburgh, Scotland in 1987. Whilst her mum is Scottish, Roxanne's father is Iranian and moved to the UK when he was just eighteen to study. The youngest of three children, Roxanne has one brother and one sister. With many aunts and uncles, she has twenty-three first cousins who live in the UK, Iran and Canada. At the age of ten, Roxanne moved to England with her family.
